33rd Sunday of the Year

18 November 2018

Dear Parishioners

On this Sunday every November the readings direct our attention to the end of the world, the last judgement and the Lord's coming in glory. Scripture is not meant to frighten or threaten but to give consolation, hope and encouragement in life's difficulties. The great truth of the gospel is that God's love has triumphed over evil and will put all things right. God is on our side. In this life we are on an earthly pilgrimage and so we have within us deep-seated longings for a better world. At journey's end we are hoping for everlasting happiness in the company of heaven. Jesus challenges us, indeed requires us, to keep ourselves prepared to meet him face to face by living each day as if it were our last.

Nowadays we seldom hear talk of hell and yet the reality is that Jesus has warned us that it is possible for us to turn our backs on him in the course of our lives and so not be called into his company on the last day. Judgement is happening all the time: God is looking at how we are trying to live now. Let us check ourselves constantly to ensure we are living by the standards and values of Jesus Christ. Let us respond to God's love for us by regular prayer and worship – and let us return God's love by treating other people with the care and respect that will earn us God's great reward when life's journey draws to its end.
